EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

1. An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

The application has been amended as follows:

In the claims:

The word "eaves" in claim 6 has been changed to ~~leaves~~.

2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: as argued by Applicant, the prior art of record fails to teach the preservation of plant leaves by treating with a dehydrating solvent consisting of acetone and ethyl alcohol to dissolve out the chlorophyll in combination with the permeation and dyeing steps and solutions of the independent claim. Fessenden's dehydration solution of acetone and monohydric alcohol is used to stabilize and preserve the natural and true color of plant materials. While Carstairs teaches the use of ethanol, which is a monohydric, dehydrating alcohol, he fails to teach its use in combination with acetone. Additionally, his method, like Fessenden's, is used to preserve the color and texture of the fresh plant material, "with minimal leaching of the colour". Applicant discloses the combination of ethyl alcohol and acetone, together, to achieve the dehydrating effects of both, while making use of the permeability properties of the ethyl alcohol to penetrate the leaves and dissolve out the chlorophyll (thus, the associated color). It would not have been obvious to select the ethyl alcohol of Carstairs for use as the monohydric alcohol of Fessenden, along with Fessenden's acetone, to achieve removal of chlorophyll (i.e., the color of the leaves) in the method of Applicant considering that Carstairs teaches that ethyl alcohol is useful as a dehydrating solvent that prevents leaching of color.

Sayo does not remedy this deficiency.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
